

Camp Fire Alaska

2020

Annual Report

Finding a Way Forward

Dear Treasured Camp Fire Supporter,

What started out as a typical year, quickly became something none of us could have predicted. In March of 2020, things changed quickly at Camp Fire as we navigated the closure of in-person schooling. Very nearly overnight, we went from serving more than 1000 youth each school day, to serving none. Our first concern was for our youth and families, knowing they would be left without the care they depended on.

It was only a matter of weeks before we began emergency childcare for families of first responders. We had not only opened child care during a time of great unknown, but we also relied on our talented staff to become experts in every health and safety protocol, as ever-changing as they were. This was the beginning of a very different period of time for Camp Fire as we adjusted all of our programs to meet the needs of the situation. None of this would have been possible without the incredible support from our donors and partners.

From day one, our donors were asking us about what we needed and how could they help? Many made masks for our youth and staff, some provided financial support that ensured families could continue to get scholarships for our programs, hundreds attended our online Champions for Children Fireside Event, and others offered an ear when we needed it.

Everything in this annual report is a reflection of that support. It shows what can be done when a community comes together to care for youth even in the most trying of times.

We have provided you with only a snapshot of highlights from the last year. It is just not possible to cover every aspect, but what is most important is that we continued to move forward together, facing challenges, overcoming obstacles, and finding joy in the small successes along the way. We are continually grateful knowing that your support recognizes that safe, reliable care for our youth is a vital aspect of a strong community.

With Gratitude,

“I’m a single mom and I didn’t hear about Camp Fire’s program until, in the middle of a shift, a coworker came running up to show me the email that said program would be free. We were hugging and in tears. If it was not for this emergency program, I would have had to put my 8-year-old daughter on a plane to go live with her dad and stepmom until this was over.”

- Camp Fire Alaska Parent

Emergency Program

The sudden closure of schools in March of 2020 left many families in a state of panic. Especially front line workers, health care professionals and first responders who were facing long hours at work with no reprieve and no options for child care. Thanks to many generous partners and donors, Camp Fire Alaska opened up full-day programs to children of these essential workers in early April at no cost. Most days included time for school work, outside or indoor play, art and STEM projects. With a lot of care, planning, and personal protective equipment, Camp Fire provided safe, fun and engaging care for these youth while their parents worked hard to protect our community during a challenging time.

- Camp Fire Alaska Youth

Finding Your Brave

Summer camp is all about “finding your brave” and that is exactly what Camp Fire kids and staff did in 2020. It was vital for parents to have a safe place to send their kids during the summer so we worked diligently to determine how we could open our day camps, Camp Si-La-Meo and Summer Adventure Camp. It meant a smaller capacity, physical distancing, masks, and health checks. But what happened next was a summer we will always remember, not just because of COVID-19, but also because of the incredible resiliency of our youth. They continued to thrive in the face of a pandemic. Smaller group structure meant staff were able to get more camper input about daily activities, which is something the kids enjoyed and appreciated. Youth also each had their own equipment to play with day after day. While it was not like any other summer before, youth still made friends and memories, discovered their independence and voice, found their passion and their brave.

- ➔ 0 Covid Cases

“Whenever I would bring the produce to Elders and families, they would express how grateful they are that Camp Fire includes the whole community in their program.”

-Leisha, Camp Fire Staff

Staying Connected to Rural Alaska

When the pandemic hit Alaska, it was clear that the Rural Alaska Program Staff would not be able to travel to the rural communities that we normally serve. But we knew that the youth in those communities still needed a place to connect with each other and with supportive adults. So instead of sending staff to the communities, we hired and trained members of each community on how to deliver Camp Fire programming, provide social-emotional learning opportunities via activity kits, and distribute food including Elder meal boxes and fresh produce. Camp Fire Alaska equipped each community while keeping themselves and the youth we serve safe, thanks to our generous program partners and supporters.

Highlights

- 22 Communities
- 4,189 Participants
- 11,631 Activity Kits Distributed
- 34,000+ Meals Provided
- 8,353 Pounds of Produce
- 16 local staff hired

“ I really appreciate Camp Fire’s responsiveness to the changing situation. The communication and response has been excellent! It’s so reassuring to have solid, reliable childcare options in this time of uncertainty. ”

- Camp Fire Alaska Parent

Back to School

The start of the 2020/21 school year wasn’t full of the usual school bells, hallways full of laughter, and kids running around greeting their friends after a summer, but instead it was computers, virtual classrooms, and physical distancing. With many parents going back to work, we knew the need for childcare was going to be great and the need for financial support for scholarships would continue to grow. Camp Fire began full-day programs supporting youth not only with childcare, but also as they navigated online school, many on different schedules. We created study stations, spread out desks, learned how to use the virtual school software and became the extra support needed when there were questions about math or spelling. It wasn’t easy, it was challenging. But one thing we could count on was the kids and their amazing ability to adapt. Even though they had to make time for school, youth also got to enjoy all of their regular Camp Fire activities too, ensuring they had opportunities to explore their passions, grow, and thrive when they needed it most.

Highlights

→ 3-9 sites (2020/21 school year)

→ Over 300 youth served

→ Kids got to be together for the first time in many months

Meeting the Need

“It felt like a really dark time, because we had so many of our children unable to access their education at all. There are so many barriers around learning at home that we had no control over. But we knew they were out there and that just weighed on our hearts....”

- Meghan McCarthy-Grant,
Chester Valley Principal

In the early fall, when Camp Fire learned from the Anchorage School District that there were hundreds of youth who hadn't engaged in school since it went online in March, we knew something needed to be done. That is how the Learning Pod Program began. In partnership with ASD and United Way, Camp Fire began a full-day supportive learning program at Chester Valley Elementary, a Title 1 school, at no cost to families. There were 27 youth identified as most in need, facing incredible barriers to their online learning including homelessness, living in a non-English speaking home, limited or no access to internet, no one at home to support on line learning during the school day, or economic challenges. Chester Valley teachers provided training and support to Camp Fire staff who worked directly with youth during the program to further enhance the youth's ability to stay on task with their academics. This was the first time CFA Staff worked alongside teachers directly assisting students in their day to day school work. The success lead to two additional schools being added in November of 2020, North Star Elementary and Muldoon Elementary.

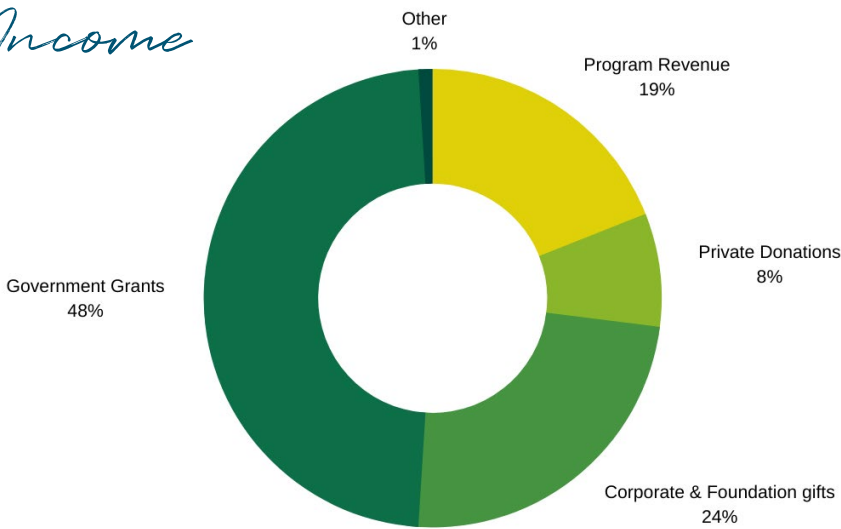

Highlights

- 3 sites/ 75 youth served
- $123,625 in Scholarships
- Attendance increase of 81.6% at Chester Valley Elementary
- Witnessing the joy on a young girls face when she got to Zoom with her class for the first time in six months
